Not all can be said in words;
Not all can be written down;
Most important is sensing feelings,
Creating a common mind,
An aura of deep understanding.
This—this alone can transcend
all that is daily,
all that is habitual,
all that is uncaring.

A finding of the self in Nature . . .

An involvement in every day from the first whisper of light til the all-inclusive blackness,

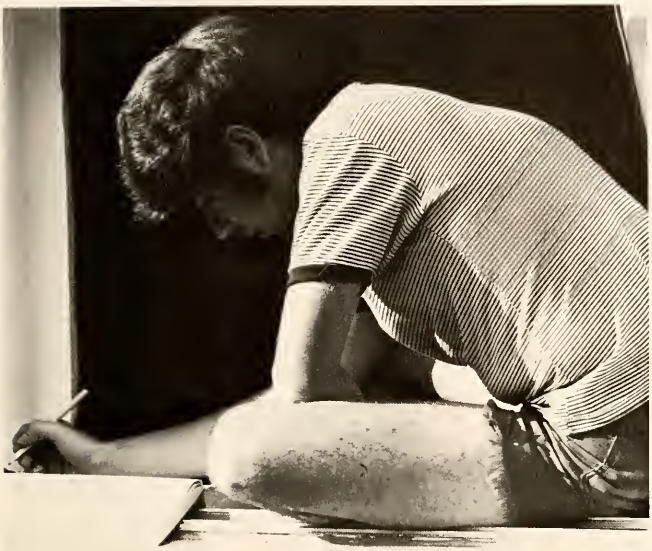
A following of days into weeks and weeks into years.

The self merges into an ever-existing cycle of time

Nature is immortal; not I.



Mmmm—the outdoors . . .

Doesn't the grass feel warm? . . . Look at him run! . . . Seems like everybody's outside today . . . Is he really studying? . . .

You should have been out at the park,

you wouldn't believe what happened! . . .

Hey—come on, you missed ANOTHER one! . . .

It's great to be outside!

The two of us. Creating Love, contentment,

joy, excitement—the thrill of loving deeply.

Everything takes on a glow and the time to love seems so endless.

My whole body is singing and everything

inside me is swelling to fill my entire being.

Your face is smiling and your cheeks

are flushed. And your eyes—so warm.

The two of us—

suspended in a shell of love.

I feel lost, confused,

dejected, hurt, lonely.

Confusion, hopelessness, disillusion.

Why me? I haven't asked to be hurt,

haven't deserved to be lonely.

What am I to do? Where do I turn now?

Looking—looking for answers . . .

Oooh! Is he tough! And he likes me . . .

I got an A on that paper . . . You're engaged! . . . You mean you really thought my speech was good? . . . I did it! I lost another pound! . . . Let's go eat someplace special . . . Wow! A sixer at Horney! . . .

Life—you're beautiful!

Hush—There's a hint of serenity.

A glimpse of knowing the unknowable;

A touch of attaining the unattainable,

Hush—There's a stirring in the soul.

A revelation of truth found in immortal words;

A vision of order discovered in realms of nature.

Hush—peace, tranquility, solitude.

Crowds. Communion.

I am not just me—but a part of all I meet,

of all I see.

Interaction. Belonging.

A place in the world to co-exist, to bask

in the warmth of friends.

Working together, however slowly, we are Moving—moving to a greater humanity.

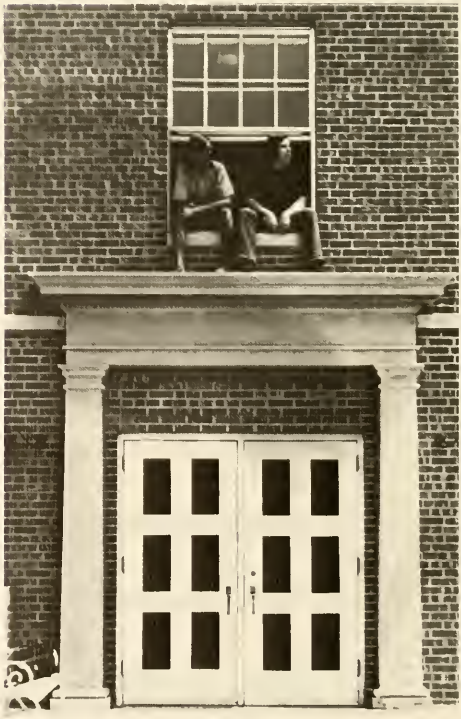
MEMORIES



THOSE WERE THE DAYS
MY FRIENDS . . .

WE THOUGHT THEY WOULD

NEVER END

PEOPLE

AND MORE PEOPLE

. . . THE LONER

THE CONFORMISTS—

CONFORMING TO NON CONFORMITY

THE OLD

THE NEW

The new collegians looking for results; not excuses or restrictions. Tired of the old cliches; "Love It or Leave It," and "Make Love Not War."

If changes are needed let us not delay, but rather act to achieve them. We are no longer children; we are now eighteen-year-old voters with ten-thirty hours.

The homecoming candidates: (TOP to BOTTOM) Kathy Bryant, freshman maid; Margo Rutledge, senior candidate; Linda Keene, junior maid; Marna Rutledge, sophomore maid; Queen Linda Goeta; Vara Best, senior candidate; Vicki Buchanan, sophomore maid.

Homecoming was underway once again. Cafe nite, the big parade, the game, and of course, the crowning of the queen. The suspense of waiting to learn the identity of our new queen was overwhelming. The suspense came to an end, however, when Miss Linda Goetz was named as Homecoming Queen.

PRESIDENT ERIC N. RACKHAM PRESIDING

(On February 20, 1828, six men (three clergymen and three laymen), Methodists, met in the house of Nathan Horner and founded the "Lebanon Seminary." In 1833, with the approval of Bishop William McKendree, its name was changed to "McKendree College," and the Reverend Peter Akers was its first president. It was one of the four colleges chartered by the Illinois State Legislature in 1835 and still operates under authority of the revised charter of 1839.)

After a relatively snowless winter, Spring struck Muck. Less than a month of Spring had passed when it ended; April 6, 1971. A foot of snow fell in Lebanon on that day. Unfortunately, most of the McKendree students had gone home for their Easter break. The snow is preserved for those who missed it on these pages.

DEDICATION

Someday on a Somewhere Corner
We'll pass by each other,
Do you suppose we'll speak
Or pass by without a nod.
Someday on a Somewhere Corner
You'll break my heart again

For who can see me coming
And not know that everything
My love knew died with Forgotten you.

By chance on that Somewhere Corner,
A laugh will be exchanged
With the gaze of four eyes.
Two blue—two brown
Two young—two old.

Who will know but they,
Secrets of the past.
Who cares,
  only behind
  the eyes,
They care.

Can time take care of Four eyes?
Or will it always be
Someday on a Somewhere Corner

Lyn White

As Editor of the 1970-71 McKENDREAN I feel that this book is a suitable cross section of the life on a small college campus. This book is by no means free from mistakes. The staff and myself have put forth a genuine effort to capture a part of the pictoral history of McKendree. The staff was one of the best, and without their devoted time there would be no 1970-71 McKENDREAN
